LEGISLATIVE INTERIM CULMINATES IN HOUSE BUDGET FILED FRIDAY

House proposal includes record funding for education, increases for human services, infrastructure, and focus on justice needs

FRANKFORT, KY - Record funding for education, a continued commitment to the state's budget reserve trust fund, and pay increases for the Kentucky State Police, state employees, social workers, and educators highlight a spending plan filed Friday by House Appropriation and Revenue Chair Jason Petrie.

Gov. Andy Beshear is expected to make his budget speech and presentation next week. However, given the Republican supermajority in both the House and Senate, the Republican proposal is likely to be the guiding document as the Legislature begins the budget-crafting process between now and the end of the session in April.

Petrie filed the legislative package after months of committee hearings, meetings with state agencies and input from public and private service providers. The document also returns to a two-year budgeting process rather than the one-year budgets done the last two years because of uncertainties over revenues and spending needs created by the pandemic.

The legislation filed Friday allocates more than $51 billion in state and federal dollars annually and includes three separate bills that provide funding for the executive, and judicial branches of government as well as the transportation spending plan. The proposed version of the executive branch budget, HB 1, allocates more than $31 billion in each fiscal year, $13.9 billion of which is general fund dollars.

"Our budget review subcommittees have been meeting since late spring to identify not only our priorities but also the realities our state faces. Ultimately, these bills provide a solid, responsible approach consistent with our state's needs and obligations and our philosophy that we must carefully consider every allocation we make," Petrie said. "I appreciate the work of those who participated and invite further input as these bills start the process and move through both chambers of the legislature."

Petrie was quick to point out that the bills continue the House Majority Caucus's efforts to improve educational opportunities for Kentucky's children. HB 1 also includes a record amount of funding for schools with the intent of allowing local districts to increase pay for classroom personnel.

"We've continued to hear local districts need help providing raises, so we made a concerted effort to get resources to them. This budget proposal includes another record-high commitment to per pupil funding, allocates considerable funding for transportation costs, and doubles kindergarten funding to pay for the entire day," Petrie added. "We chose to allocate resources to local districts and allow them to create their own plans for raises since many have already used other sources of revenue to do so. Of course, we will also be monitoring as local districts make decisions about how to spend this money, as well as the millions in federal funding they have received to help students recover from learning loss and other issues associated with the pandemic and the state's shutdown."

Representative Brandon Reed, who serves as Vice Chair of the House Appropriations and Revenue Committee, is the primary cosponsor of HB 1, HB 241, and HB 244.

"For far too long Kentucky state government has looked at the budget as an opportunity to win votes and curry favor. That hasn't been our approach and it certainly is not with this budget. While some would ask that we use one-time federal funds to make recurring commitments we would be paying for long after the federal funding to pay for them has ended. We're committed to continuing work to provide clean drinking water, internet access, and meeting our pension obligations," Reed added. "These are basic and fundamental concerns."

Highlights from the proposed spending plans include:

K-12 Education Funding

House Speaker David Osborne applauded the work done under Petrie and Reed's leadership, "This budget, crafted under the leadership of Chairman Petrie, Vice Chair Reed, and our Appropriations and Revenue subcommittee chairs, is a responsible spending plan that not only meets today's needs but leaves us far better prepared for the future. We are in a strong financial position, but our economy is still in a precarious position. I know there are those calling for us to spend federal dollars as fast as we receive them, but you can't spend the same dollar twice – we have to get it right the first time."

Budget bills are traditionally assigned to the House Appropriations and Revenue Committee for consideration. Governor Andy Beshear is expected to make his budget recommendations available to lawmakers during a Budget Address on January 13.
